

THE SERVIENT LEADER

- My management style is called servient leadership, which is selfless leadership. When I walk into the office my approach is what can I do for my colleagues who work with me - not for me - rather than what they can do for me. I believe I'm a resource and they can utilise me to make their work easier.
- I start every new day as if it is my first day at work. It is important for managers to recognise that you have to start the day afresh and that you have to forget about yesterday. Reset your mind and your whole expectation for a new day. The movie Groundhog Day comes to mind where every day is the same. Do not get stuck in a routine as you won't be able to grow. >>

"I believe I'm a resource and they can utilise me to make their work easier."

