

Long showers and going barefoot

"When I'm feeling stuck, my secret move is to take a long shower. It's some combination of the solitude, the humidity, the grey noise of falling water, and the fact that my laptop isn't waterproof. I can only imagine the discoveries Archimedes would have made, if showers were invented back then..."

"I love being barefoot. I've visited malls, attended university, and have even caught a flight barefoot. Somehow, I feel less social pressure with no shoes. I haven't figured out why, but I think it's partially because of how stupid I know I look, so any hope of upholding a lofty pretence is futile. Also I feel like I can walk much further barefoot. It's probably time to see a podiatrist..."

"I can also play the pan flute, beatbox, and moonwalk. Probably even at once, though I can't say I've tried." >>

I love being barefoot. Somehow,
I feel less social pressure with no shoes.

ARJUN KHOOSAL
is the CEO and Co-
Founder of Kandua